

Press Release

Press Contact:
Esther Koo
Southard Communications
(212) 777-2220
esther@southardinc.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
11:13 A.M. EDT
September 8, 2010

STREAM TV'S GROUNDBREAKING eLOCITY A7 TABLET WITH NVIDIA TEGRA II RUNNING ON ANDROID 2.2 NOW AVAILABLE ON AMAZON.COM

iPad competitor available for pre-order beginning September 8

SEPTEMBER 8, 2010 (PHILADELPHIA, PA) Stream TV Networks has announced that its new eLocity A7 mobile tablet, the first seven-inch tablet in the US running the Android 2.2 operating system, will be available for pre-order beginning today, and sold exclusively on Amazon.com for the initial launch period. The tablet comes with the nVidia Tegra II processor providing for an unbelievably fast 3D gaming experience, a micro SD card slot, HDMI port with 1080p output and a USB port. Customer orders will be fulfilled through Amazon.com.

CEO Mathu Rajan of Stream TV comments, "We are elated that Amazon.com, the nation's largest e-tailer, has teamed up with us to offer eLocity brand tablets to its customers. We know Amazon's electronics store is one of the first places customers turn to for product information and customer services. We believe that our tablet is a worthy competitor to the iPad and, we expect to exceed sales targets."

~ MORE ~

With a high resolution seven-inch capacitive and multi-touch screen and streamlined dimensions of 8.2 inches by 4.8 inches, the new eLocity A7 tablet is being officially unveiled today and is now available for pre-order on Amazon.com.

-End-

Note to Editors: For any press inquiries, or to arrange product reviews and interviews, please contact esther@southardinc.com or contact Esther Koo or Bill Southard, Southard Communications, 212-777-2220. Review units will be limited so please submit requests as early as possible so that you can secure an advanced place in the queue.